NOMINATION PROCESS

Faculty may be nominated by their peers or self-nominated.

Faculty nomination letters should:

1. include a completed Award Nomination Cover Page.
2. address the award criteria listed below.
3. be between 100-500 words in length.

Faculty who are nominated will be contacted by the Office of the President.

Nomination letters should be submitted electronically to the selection committee through the Office of the President, presidentialawards@csusm.edu. Please include the name of the award in the email's subject line.

SELECTION CRITERIA

The faculty portfolio is one consisting of teaching, research, and service. Less often noticed than teaching or research, service leadership is part of the university's mission in both teaching and outreach to the community and has the possibility of making significant contributions both to the campus and to the community at large. The purpose of this award is to recognize an outstanding member of the faculty whose sustained meritorious service leadership provides a worthy and visible example to peers and who applies professional expertise and interests in diverse roles outside the classroom. The award also serves to highlight the collective service of the faculty—service that gives CSU San Marcos its classification as a “community-engaged institution.”

The single criterion for this award is the sustained achievement of service activity with increasingly significant leadership responsibilities.

Dossier

Accepting the nomination requires the faculty member to electronically submit a small dossier to the committee through the staff liaison, presidentialawards@csusm.edu. The dossier should consist of:

1. A narrative essay of up to 1,000 words.
2. A complete vitae or resume.

Specifically, the applicant’s essay should:

1. Define the period of service and the activities constituting service.
2. Describe the specific significance of the service work to the campus and/or the wider community.
3. Presumably, service by tenure-track faculty is part of the faculty member’s job duties. That historically has not been the case for lecturers. All nominees may choose to identify within their c.v. and/or essay what activities are wholly voluntary and have fallen outside their compensated assigned duties.

Nominees may also address, when appropriate, any student participation in the service activity.

SELECTION PROCESS

The selection committee is composed of the following members:

1. One faculty member chosen by the President
2. One academic administrator chosen by the Provost
3. A member of the Academic Senate Executive Committee
4. One lecturer faculty member appointed by the Academic Senate
5. The faculty member who is the immediate past recipient of the award (or a designee appointed by the Executive Committee of the Academic Senate)

Committee members will review nominations and dossiers and recommend to the President, a faculty member whose service leadership has the greatest impact, value, or significance to the university or the larger community. While it is difficult to rate service based on “greatest” impact, this is the challenge of the Selection Committee. The President will make the final decision based on the Selection Committee’s recommendation.

An announcement to the campus community will be sent after the President has selected the recipient of the award. The awardee will be recognized at the Faculty and Staff Awards Ceremony and will receive a $2,000 privately funded award.

The award criteria and process shall be reviewed every three years for currency and clarity.
